

OFFICE OF PUBLIC & INDIAN HOUSING

December 21, 2022

Dear PHA Executive Directors and Tribal Leaders:

You may have heard that the Federal Communication Commission’s (FCC) Affordable Connectivity Program \(ACP\) is available to recipients of federal housing assistance. This includes a monthly benefit for Public Housing and Housing Choice Voucher households (up to $30/month), and Tribal Housing households (up to $75/month). In combination with many Internet Service Providers’ (ISP) low-cost, high-speed plans, the ACP can cover, or nearly cover, the full cost of in-home broadband internet access.

This means more children with access to the internet to do their homework, more seniors who can access vital communication with doctors and loved ones, and more families with access to ever-growing digital opportunities.

The FCC has made an unprecedented amount of funding available to help get the word out, with specific set-asides for Tribal ($10 million) and Public Housing communities ($5 million).

I encourage you to learn more about these grant opportunities to fund ACP outreach in your community. Here are a few steps you can take:
